Arabic Citation Index

- Global Recognition
- Better Discoverability
- Impact Measurement
- Support for Regional Research

The Arabic Citation Index (ARCI) was developed through a strategic partnership between Clarivate and the Egyptian Knowledge Bank (EKB) to give Arabic-language research greater visibility and recognition worldwide.

Historically, most citation databases focused on English publications, leaving Arabic research underrepresented. ARCI fills this gap by indexing high-quality Arabic scholarly journals, enabling researchers to track citations, measure impact, and connect with regional and global studies

Ensuring the Quality, Arabic Citation Index Selection Criteria

These are 13 REQUIRED fields. Selected titles MUST have each of these elements

Arabic Citation Index for Middle eastern Libraries

- ARCI ensures that regional studies are easily accessible and connected to the global research ecosystem. By using ARCI within the Web of Science platform, researchers can search by keywords, filter by country or subject area, and explore citation networks to identify influential work from the Middle East. This makes it an essential resource for anyone looking to reference authentic, region-specific research and track its impact.
